We deliver upon this purpose through value-added services, comprehensive coverage and strong leadership.

PARTNERSHIP

PIRMA is your risk management partner, providing solutions, ideas and guidance to protect your entity.

PROTECTION

PIRMA offers coverage specifically written to the needs and nuances of local government; it's our specialty.

CONFIDENCE

PIRMA supports your risk management every step of the way, so you don't have to worry.

MESSAGE FROM THE CHAIR

GREETINGS PIRMA MEMBERS,

Partnership. Protection. Confidence. These are the three promises that PIRMA continues to deliver to our membership through value-added services, comprehensive coverage and strong leadership.

PIRMA is well-regarded as the primary local government risk management pool in Pennsylvania. Our team of service providers strives to elevate the risk management services provided to PIRMA members. Member feedback has been valuable for existing services and on new offerings to be added, such as cyber coverage and the Legal Access Program.

In 2022, we refreshed the PIRMA website and introduced an informative quarterly newsletter sent to all members. Our service providers have also elevated the educational opportunities for members through the PIRMA Resource eLibrary – found on the PIRMA.org website – and Third Thursday webinars. If you have not already taken advantage of these free services, I urge you to do so.

In our efforts to give back to members, we awarded Loss Control Grants to Limerick Township (Montgomery County), Indiana Township (Allegheny County), Danville Borough (Montour County), Port Clinton Borough (Schuylkill County) and Millersville Borough (Lancaster County). Congratulations to all our grant recipients!

Also in 2022, we welcomed three new members to the PIRMA Board of Directors. Joining us from across the state are Dale Beaver of Howe Township (Perry County), Jeffrey Beck of Rice Township (Luzerne County) and David Bolton of Abbottstown Borough (Adams County).

As you will see in the following pages of this report, PIRMA had another great year financially, continues to offer superior programs and coverages, and is supported by responsive service providers – HA Thomson, Siana Law and Integrated Risk Management.

Remember – PIRMA is here to serve our members. Together we make PIRMA the premier local government risk-sharing pool in Pennsylvania.

MESSAGE FROM GENERAL COUNSEL

By Stephen V. Siana, Esquire
General Counsel to PIRMA

PIRMA and our member municipalities have weathered challenging times over the past several years – an international pandemic, supply chain shortages of critical supplies, a difficult labor environment with fast-changing, unclear regulatory obligations, an uneasy inflationary economy, geopolitical issues that again highlight the importance of local cyber security measures and an ever-shifting legal environment with novel claims raised against our members. Despite these challenges, PIRMA, through its Board and consultants, has proven to be creative in promoting our core principles. We provide comprehensive liability protection for our members; we zealously defend claims brought against our members with experienced, well-regarded legal counsel who are at the forefront of municipal law; we engage in robust measures to educate members and provide unmatched risk management and loss control services.

PIRMA continues to bolster its risk management and loss control efforts by enhancing its online resources, as it rolls out educational resources, legislative tracking and loss control grants. PIRMA's defense counsel continue to present at educational seminars to public officials and municipal employees through local, county and statewide municipal associations, including the Pennsylvania State Association of Boroughs and the Pennsylvania State Association of Township Supervisors. These programs have expanded with PIRMA's Third Thursday sessions and the Legal Access program. With more than twenty-four Third Thursday sessions thus far, these programs have provided critical legal educational updates to our members. In addition to the attendees participating on the particular presentation day, these sessions have been viewed online more than 200 times. These types of initiatives set PIRMA apart, demonstrating its proactive approach to risk management and protecting member interests. These educational programs promote loss control by sensitizing public officials and municipal employees on the various risks and pitfalls associated with their day-to-day operations. I encourage you to attend these programs. The education they afford will be a significant benefit to you and in fulfilling your municipal roles. Additionally, PIRMA's service providers are happy to provide assistance, training, risk management and loss control training.

The coming year will undoubtedly present many new challenges and opportunities for PIRMA and our member municipalities. We continue to track the legal attacks to the liability cap under the Tort Claims Act and the corresponding legislative efforts to amend it. Indeed, a fresh challenge to the cap is currently making its way through the Pennsylvania Appellate Courts, with the current members of the bench having previously signaled impatience with legislative efforts to address it. Any changes, while likely, could have a lasting effect on the scope of the claims brought against our members. It will be critical to actively track and participate in the statewide consideration of the issue in order to protect our members and be proactive in responding to any legislative change.

Separately, we need to remain cognizant of the impact of national news events on claims of police bias and use of force incidents (which has prompted calls for legislative reform and created a stigma faced by municipal police departments). Claimants are also continuing in their efforts to use the Right to Know Act process to further their claims. The plaintiff's bar continues to press hard seeking substantial recoveries based on novel theories of liability and municipal responsibilities. PIRMA's defense counsel will continue to put forth formidable, member-driven defenses and provide knowledgeable representation to effectively meet these challenges.

The inflationary economy and an increase in state-mandated requirements has increased the financial challenges facing municipalities. The exposures associated with volatile weather, cyber risks, and social inflation in the form of escalating jury verdicts have caused reinsurance markets to adjust pricing upward and limit their coverages. PIRMA's dedicated team will continue to work diligently to help PIRMA's members stay abreast of these exposures and challenging markets.
